Demobilization Criticism Continues

SOLONS STILL NOT SATISFIED WITH PROGRAM

Marshall's Promises Of Low Point System Fails To Halt Congressmen

MAY DECIDE MOVES TODAY

Senate Committee Studies Legislation Measures Thought Needed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—Congressional criticism of Army demobilization continued today despite Gen. George C. Marshall's promise of point reductions and releases as fast as possible.

Whether congress will take matters into its own hands remained to be seen. A special closed meeting of the senate military affairs committee today offered a possible indication of which way congressional sentiment will swing.

The committee was expected to consider what legislation, if any, is needed in view of Marshall's statement and the facts uncovered in a week of public hearings on demobilization plans of all branches of the armed forces.

Chairman Elbert D. Thomas, D., Utah, wanted nothing more for the present than approval of legislation designed to encourage voluntary enlistments and to reduce the need for draftees in the armies of occupation.

Marshall, as usual, made a generally favorable impression when he addressed members of both houses in what may be his last appearance before congress as chief of staff.

(Reports that he intends to retire soon gained impetus when Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, chief of Army Service Forces, requested retirement with the stipulation that it become effective on the date Marshall leaves.)

Congressmen under pressure from the home folks to get the boys out immediately were encouraged by Marshall's promises that:

1. The discharge score for enlisted men will be reduced from 80 to 70 on Oct. 1 and to 60 on Nov. 1. All men of more than two years service will be eligible for release "by late winter."

2. The discharge score for officers will be cut from the present 100 to 75 on Oct. 1 and 65 on Nov. 1.

3. WAC discharge scores for officers will be cut from 44 to 39 in October. Enlisted WAC score will drop from 41 to 36 on October 1 and to 34 on Nov. 1.

4. All men in the United States for whom the Army doesn't have "useful employment" will be released in three or four weeks.

World's End Is Delayed For Awhile

The Rev. Mr. Long Says He May Have Talked Lord Out Of Destruction Plan

PASADENA, Calif., Sept. 21—Today was scheduled to be WE-day (world's end day), but 72-year-old Rev. Charles G. Long believes he may have talked the Lord out of it.

At any rate, he felt certain that he had gained a stay of execution and that the earth might linger on for another nine days.

The founder and leader of the Remnant Church of God said the Lord told him that he might keep that cosmic bomb behind the pearly gates and not drop it on the world at all "if the peoples repent of their wrongs."

Rev. Long was feeling pretty vexed too, because he just remembered that in that vision back in 1938 a moving hand neglected to tell him whether an ancient or modern calendar was to be used in figuring out the beginning of all Eternity.

Long had worked out his date with doom on a latest modern calendar and, as he gloomily pointed out, if the Lord meant for him to use the old biblical calendar his present calculations were bound to be way off base.

"Everyone knows that they got things pretty mixed up when they switched from the biblical to the Julian calendar," said Long. "So how am I going to know where to locate my errors?"

FARM SUBSIDIES MAY END SOON

Anderson Says 'We Must Continue To Guard Against Inflation'

DECATUR, Ill., Sept. 21—The nation's farmers were told today that, "with few exceptions," all hold-the-line subsidies could be discontinued by next June 30.

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson said at an agriculture-industry conference last night that "the end of the war has made full scale continuation of these subsidies unnecessary."

"While we must continue to guard against inflation, we must recognize that many of the factors that made wartime subsidies necessary are rapidly disappearing."

In an interview at Indianapolis en route here, Anderson announced that low grade cuts of beef would be ration free after Sept. 30. Points will remain on

MOVIE CAMERAS SHOT MAPS OF AREAS IN JAPAN

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 21—Filmmakers' part in the bombing of Japan was revealed today when the wraps were taken off "project 152," a huge relief map of the major target areas of Japan.

Built to the scale of one foot to the mile, the map was complete with artificial fog, spun glass clouds, columns of trees, hills, rivers and buildings. Suspended over it was a huge movie camera mounted on a sliding crane timed to keep over the model at the exact speed of a B-29 roaring over Japan.

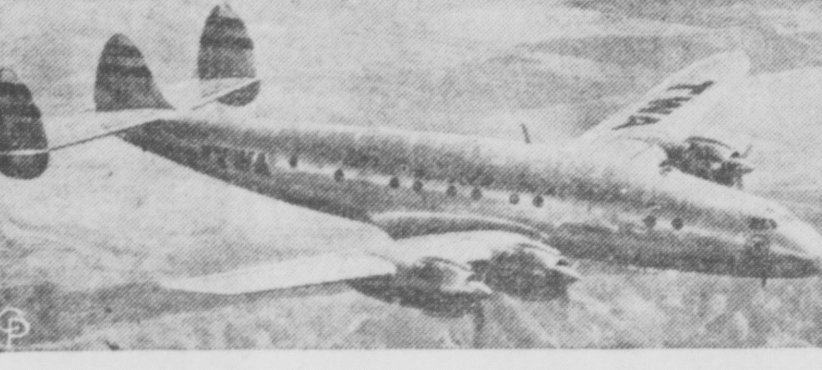

The camera recorded everything a B-29 crew would see from 30,000 feet, and the films were flown to advanced bases for "briefing" bomber crews.

The project, which cost less than one B-29, was credited by army air forces Gen. H. H. Arnold with saving scores of B-29s from being shot down and being "the most successful briefing apparatus of this or any war." In operation for one year, it was set up and operated by members of the 18th AAF base unit.

AIR GIANTS FOR POST-WAR TRAVEL

DOUGLAS DC-6 AIRLINER CAN CROSS CONTINENT IN 9½ HOURS

GIANT CONSTELLATION CRUISES AT 300 MILES-PER-HOUR SPEED

HERE ARE VIEWS of two of the new airliners that will soon be carrying travelers about the nation at a 300-mile-per-hour cruising speed. The Douglas DC-6 (top) can carry 52 or more passengers, plus 5500 pounds of cargo, and will reduce coast-to-coast travel time to about 9½ hours or less. United Airlines has ordered 50 of these sky giants. Similarly, the Constellation (bottom) will carry more than 50 passengers in pressurized, air-conditioned cabins. TWA has bought 38. Gen. MacArthur Orders Immediate Arrest Of Jap Army Commander

TOKYO, Sept. 21—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today ordered the immediate arrest of Gen. Kenji Doihara, commander of the Japanese first general army, and imposed 10 rigid restrictions on the Japanese press.

The arrest order went out only 48 hours after Doihara was named to succeed Field Marshal Gen. Sugiyama, who committed suicide September 12. U. S. Army authorities were understood to be considering war criminal charges against Doihara on the basis of his record as a commander in China.

As commander of the first Japanese general army, Doihara's principal task was to supervise the disarming and demobilization of more than 1,000,000 Japanese troops in central Japan. He also retained command of Japanese eastern army district headquarters.

MacArthur said his 10 commandments for Japanese newspapers and other publications were designed to educate them in the meaning of a free press. The restrictions applied to news, editorials and advertisements.

They were:

1.—Newspapers must adhere strictly to the truth.

2.—Nothing shall be printed which might directly or indirectly disturb public tranquility.

3.—No newspaper or other periodical shall falsely or destructively criticize the Allied powers.

4.—They shall not invite mistrust or resentment against Allied occupation troops.

5.—They shall not mention or discuss Allied troop movements unless these have been officially released.

6.—Stories must be factually written, completely devoid of any editorial opinion.

7.—Stories shall not be colored to conform to any editorial line.

8.—Minor details of a news story must not be over-emphasized to stress or develop any propaganda line.

9.—No story shall be disturbed through omission of pertinent facts or details.

CLOCKS TO MOVE BACK ONE HOUR SEPTEMBER 30

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—Get ready to enjoy an extra hour's sleep a week from next Sunday.

On that date, Sept. 30, at exactly 2 a. m. EWT, the nation's clocks will go back an hour and it won't be war time any more. It'll be standard time 1 a. m. EST. You can sleep another hour before its 2 a. m. again.

The Senate late yesterday completed congressional action on the bill ending war time Sept. 30. President Truman is expected to sign it in time for it to become effective on that date.

OIL SHORTAGE CAUSED BY MEN OUT ON STRIKE

Refining Operations In Six States Affected By Mass Walkouts

RATION PROGRAM PLANNED

Columbus And Other Ohio Filling Stations Limit Sales To Customers

BULLETIN

DETROIT, Sept. 21—A strike of 800 CIO automobile workers closed Chrysler corporation's Dodge truck plant today in a new dispute on Detroit's troubled labor front.

Company officials said the strike developed temporary lay-off of 2,200 employees resulting from lack of truck parts from strike-bound supplying firms.

By United Press

Motorists and filling station attendants eyed their emptying gasoline tanks anxiously today as spreading strikes in the nation's richest oil refining areas threatened to dry up the petroleum industry.

Refining operations in six states, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, West Virginia and Texas, all were affected by the mass walk-out to back demands for maintenance of war-inflated wages.

Similar demands for higher hourly wage rates to compensate for reduced work schedules accounted for most of the country's total of 200,000 idle.

The dwindling output of the Calumet river refinery district in northern Indiana, already halved by a walkout of nearly 5,000 CIO oil workers, came entirely from the huge Standard Oil plant at Whiting. The refinery processes 2,500,000 gallons a day.

Along the Texas Gulf coast, production at Port Arthur was at a virtual standstill and Houston refining operations badly crippled by strikes. Fellow unionists in Port Neches and in Port Arthur's three butane plants were expected to walk out momentarily.

Striking members of the Oil Workers International union (CIO) picketed the Whiting plant yesterday and distributed leaflets in an attempt to solicit the co-operation of the 6,000 Standard employees, members of an independent union.

TRUE STORY OF PEARL HARBOR KNOWN BY DEWEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey "knew the full story of Pearl Harbor" during the 1944 presidential campaign and its political impact "might well have landed Dewey in the White House" had he not refrained from using it at the request of Gen. George C. Marshall, Life magazine said today.

Life said Gen. Marshall told Dewey in a letter that the United States had cracked the Japanese "ultra" code, but asked him to keep the information secret as Japan still was using the code.

"Long before the nation went to the polls it had come to Thomas E. Dewey's attention that we had cracked the Japanese 'ultra' code sometime prior to Pearl Harbor and that Roosevelt and his advisers knew what the Japanese were going to do well in advance of the overt rupture in relations," the Life story said.

"The political impact of such a charge, if supported by the evidence of the code-cracking, would have been terrific, and might well have landed Dewey in the White House," Life concluded.

HOUSE EXPECTED TO CUT PERIOD OF JOBLESS PAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—The senate-approved compromise unemployment benefit bill was in the hands of an unfriendly house ways and means committee today.

Mr. Truman had asked congress to authorize payment of maximum benefits of $25 for 26 weeks in all states. The senate-approved provision would set the maximum duration at 26 weeks in most states, although there would be no change in the amount of the payments.

Administration supporters won the final test before passage when the senate voted 61 to 16 to eliminate a provision permitting supplementary payments only at the request of state governors.

It appeared doubtful that the committee would accept the senate provision to extend the duration of payments. A majority of the committee has shown unwillingness to change either the rate or duration of payments established by the states.

ONE OF the most amazing stories of the war has had its climax in Shanghai, China. Comdr. Columbus D. Smith, 55, Atlanta, Ga., officially listed as dead, even to his wife, has turned up safe and sound. In command of the gunboat Wake, Smith was taken prisoner by the Japs in 1941. He escaped, was recaptured, and escaped again. Flown to Washington, he was sent on a special mission after being listed as dead. Only recently, after the mission—mine-sweeping the Yangtze—was completed, was Mrs. Smith told he was very much alive. (International)

WALLACE PLANS REORGANIZATION

Commerce Secretary Says He Wants To Give More Aid To Business

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—Government reorganization under President Truman reached out today to the commerce department where Secretary Henry A. Wallace announced plans to increase his agency's aid to business and bring business and government closer together.

The alterations go hand in hand with recent changes in the labor department, designed to make that body more serviceable to the nation's workers. Wallace said one of his chief aims is to have his commerce department "pull its full load" toward achievement of 60,000,000 jobs by 1950.

The key to Wallace's reorganization plan is the aim of stepping up America's foreign trade and providing more technological, statistical and management aid to business—particularly small business.

As one of the mechanisms for achieving these ends he will seek three new assistant secretaries to concentrate on the problems of international trade, industrial economy and small business.

To aid business here at home Wallace proposed:

1. A strong balanced program to provide business and government with statistics, centering around a large expansion of the work of the census bureau. He wants a (Continued on Page Two)

10 MILLION MAY BE UNEMPLOYED, ECONOMISTS SAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—Office of Price Administration economists have prepared a memorandum predicting that unemployment may reach a total of 10,000,000 by June, it was learned today.

Other government economists, including advisers to reconversion Director John W. Snyder, consider the OPA estimate too pessimistic. Snyder's own estimate is 8,000,000 unemployed by Spring. He expects that to be the peak, with a gradual reduction thereafter as industry attains its maximum production.

Meanwhile, it was learned that OPA is contemplating removal of price control from many items of food beginning Dec. 1. These would include items which were generally in good supply. But the agency intends to continue price control over other food products which will continue in short supply through next Spring.

MacARTHUR SAYS NIPS IN STATE OF COMPLETE COLLAPSE

Supreme Commander Says War Criminal Trials Will Start Very Shortly; Japs Being Treated Harshly But Not Brutally

By HUGH BAILLIE
President of United Press
(World Copyright, 1945 by United Press)

TOKYO, Sept. 21—Japan will never again become a world power, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today in an interview with the United Press.

"Japan industrially, commercially, militarily and every other way is in a state of complete collapse," MacArthur declared. "Her food supplies are scarce and she faces conditions in this emergency that may well become catastrophic. Her punishment for her sins, which is just beginning, will be long and bitter."

The supreme commander told me that war criminal trials will commence very shortly. Japan's army will be absolutely abolished by Oct.

ABDICATION OF HIROHITO SEEN

Rumors Of Emperor Quitting Post Increase Despite Royal Denial

TOKYO, Sept. 21—Indications that Emperor Hirohito is considering abdicating in favor of his 11-year-old son increased today despite a denial from the royal household.

Two factors in particular bolstered the belief that Hirohito is pondering abdicating:

1. Crown Prince Akihito was ordered two days before Japan's capitulation to prepare himself for "Togu"—the science of rulership—and Dr. Shigetomo Hozumi, retired professor of jurisprudence at Tokyo imperial university, was named official adviser and instructor to him.

2. Prince Chichibu, tubercular brother of Hirohito and probable regent in the event of his abdication, is making one of his rare trips to Tokyo in response to a summons from the emperor.

Asked point-blank whether Hirohito was considering abdicating, however, imperial household minister Shotaro Ishiwata, one of the Mikado's closest advisers, told the United Press:

"Such a thing as abdication of Emperor Hirohito absolutely could not be."

Ishiwata's statement might be technically correct at the moment, but still was subject to complete reversal. "Koshitu tempan"—the law of the imperial family—prohibits abdication of the emperor for any reason except illness which prevents discharge of the royal responsibilities.

"Koshitu tempan" nevertheless could be revised at Hirohito's request if first approved at a family conference of royal princes and by the privy council. The latter body of 15 is appointed by the emperor.

Many informed Japanese believed Hirohito intends to remain on the throne only long enough to complete his surrender commitments. They believe he holds himself responsible for following military advice with fatal results to the empire.

If Chichibu's health should prevent his assumption of the prince regency, the next royal brother in line would be Prince Takamatsu, 41, and after him, Prince Mikasa, 31.

With her cities, factories, navy, and airforce mostly gone, Japan's only weapon at the finish consisted of a big formidable army which was prepared to fight American landings to the death—Okinawa style. But this is the very army which now is laying down its arms in droves.

Latest figures show now that 73 percent are demobilized. MacArthur told me how 150,000 American troops went ashore without loss of a single life. The American armed total will soon exceed the Japanese, after which landings will be continued until (Continued on Page Two)

Commerce Secretary Says He Wants To Give More Aid To Business

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—Government reorganization under President Truman reached out today to the commerce department where Secretary Henry A. Wallace announced plans to increase his agency's aid to business and bring business and government closer together.

The alterations go hand in hand with recent changes in the labor department, designed to make that body more serviceable to the nation's workers. Wallace said one of his chief aims is to have his commerce department "pull its full load" toward achievement of 60,000,000 jobs by 1950.

The key to Wallace's reorganization plan is the aim of stepping up America's foreign trade and providing more technological, statistical and management aid to business—particularly small business.

As one of the mechanisms for achieving these ends he will seek three new assistant secretaries to concentrate on the problems of international trade, industrial economy and small business.

To aid business here at home Wallace proposed:

1. A strong balanced program to provide business and government with statistics, centering around a large expansion of the work of the census bureau. He wants a (Continued on Page Two)

Supreme Commander Says War Criminal Trials Will Start Very Shortly; Japs Being Treated Harshly But Not Brutally

By HUGH BAILLIE
President of United Press
(World Copyright, 1945 by United Press)

TOKYO, Sept. 21—Japan will never again become a world power, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today in an interview with the United Press.

"Japan industrially, commercially, militarily and every other way is in a state of complete collapse," MacArthur declared. "Her food supplies are scarce and she faces conditions in this emergency that may well become catastrophic. Her punishment for her sins, which is just beginning, will be long and bitter."

The supreme commander told me that war criminal trials will commence very shortly. Japan's army will be absolutely abolished by Oct.

15. The remnants of Japan's navy are doomed to destruction except "minor specimens which may be retainable for scientific or museum purposes."

All Japanese munitions and all munitions plants which survived the war will be destroyed, MacArthur said. Japan will be kept on an austerity basis regarding sports, entertainment, and luxuries.

OIL SHORTAGE CAUSED BY MEN OUT ON STRIKE

Refining Operations In Six States Affected By Mass Walkouts

Pipeline co., which supplies crude oil to the Whiting plant, was postponed, however, pending appraisal of the union's success in enlisting the support of Standard employees.

Both the CIO and unaffiliated unions asked 52 hours pay for a 40-hour week, the equivalent of a 30 per cent wage increase. The Standard Oil workers' association still is negotiating with the company and has instructed members to ignore CIO picket lines.

California's gas and oil supplies were threatened when oil workers there promised strike action of negotiations failed with officials at two Los Angeles Shell Oil plants.

In Chicago and its outlying communities, truck drivers who deliver gasoline met to consider joining the striking oil workers. The drivers, members of the AFL teamsters union, are seeking a similar wage increase.

Texas motorists, with the exception of essential users, were warned to expect no more gasoline after existing supplies were used up. Conferences were called hurriedly in Toledo, O., to set up an oil rationing system, and severe fuel shortages loomed in Cleveland and Detroit.

Clyde Chamblen, secretary of the Toledo Oil workers local 356, predicted that the eight state region surrounding Ohio would be plunged into a gas shortage within 48 hours. Columbus filling stations began to place a five-gallon limit on gasoline sales.

In Detroit, idleness of some 83,000 workers hampered reconversion of the automobile industry. A corps of seven labor department conciliators took over negotiations on orders from Washington. The conciliators ordered hearings on fringe disputes pending efforts of the CIO United Auto Workers to solve a strike of 4,500 Kelsey-Hayes employees which has forced the layoff of 50,000 Ford workers.

Another new development on the labor front was the Atlantic and Pacific Tea co. Announcement that 250 New Jersey and Staten Island, N. Y., stores would be closed because of a strike at a Newark warehouse.

CHURCH PLANS SUNDAY SERVICE

Christ Lutheran Members To Observe Reopening Of House Of Worship

A reopening service for Christ Lutheran Church, located seven miles west of Circleville, will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. The special service will mark the completion of the renovation and redecoration of the church which has been completed in the past month.

The Rev. George L. Troutman will give the sermon, "Why a Christian Congregation Beautifies Their House of Worship." Special music for the occasion will be sung by the choir and the congregation. Mrs. Troutman will sing a solo, "The Builder." The child of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Hill will be baptized. Helen Margaret Kern is pianist and Mary Kern, choir director.

Members of the church council consist of the following: Noah List, secretary; Harry Kern, treasurer; George Kern, James List, Edward Hulise, William Hulise, Charles List, Lawrence Krimmel, Turney Krimmel, Lyle Davis, Harry Barthelmas, and the Rev. Mr. Troutman, president.

The public is invited to join with the congregation in this special service. The congregation will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary next year.

The congregation was organized in 1896 by Dr. J. H. Schneider, now a retired pastor, aged 92, residing in Columbus. He served two years. The late Dr. G. J. Troutman served from 1898 until last January. Rev. George L. Troutman, present pastor, has served since 1929.

Two active organizations have been in existence for many years. The Ladies Society was organized over 25 years ago and is an active member of the Women's Missionary Federation of the American Lutheran church.

The Luther League, organized in 1929, holds membership in the Federated Luther Leagues of the American Lutheran Church. Both organizations meet once a month.

500,000 Americans are on Nipponese soil.

MacArthur said this bloodless occupation was impossible without retention of the emperor for surrender purposes and he declared that maintenance of the emperor during the disarmament proceedings had resulted in an "untold saving of American lives, money and time."

During the interview MacArthur vigorously batted down various reports regarding the occupation such as that the Japanese were hiding arms, that Japanese soldiers were sneaking into the gendarmerie, that the Japanese fail to realize they are thoroughly licked, or that the Americans have not yet come into actual possession of surrendered Japanese arms and munitions.

He revealed that the Japanese military and secret police were being abolished, that no permanent Japanese army for policing purposes will be maintained, that nothing will be done regarding the employment of 3,000,000 Japanese soldiers who must exist or die as members of a civilian population which is already without houses, underfed, and heavily unemployed.

MacArthur pointed out that the Japanese diet was permitted to meet briefly only to transmit capitulation instructions to the populace.

There have been many reports regarding the numerical strength of the American army at present in Japan and the future maximum which will be required for the occupation, so I asked MacArthur for a statement on this.

"At the present time there are approximately 150,000 troops in Japan," he said. "The maximum figure will reach approximately 500,000."

He said it was not planned to use American troops for any construction of housing for the Japanese and that there is no plan for importing food, clothing, or supplies for the use of the Japanese population this winter.

"Will the demobilized Japanese army in Japan be put to work under the supervision of American authorities?" I asked.

"They will be a responsibility of the Japanese themselves," he said. "They will be absorbed into the normal Japanese civil population."

Asked if there was any deterioration in the attitude of respect and cooperation shown by Japanese soldiers and civilians toward the occupation forces, MacArthur replied: "none whatsoever."

Regarding reports in the United States that MacArthur is not treating the Japanese with sufficient harshness, he commented: "The Japanese are not being treated with brutality but every step provided by the surrender terms, no matter how harsh, is being enforced. Their humiliation, their despair, and the hardships which they face cannot be overestimated."

Asked whether he believed the Japanese military elements and people realize their defeat, MacArthur replied, "completely, although there will always be the guardhouse type of lawyers who will present their own arguments. An educational campaign is planned further to drive home the realization of their complete defeat."

Asked for the ultimate objective of the military occupation of Japan, he said: "complete execution of terms imposed by the Allied powers is the ultimate objective. This is expected to take many years."

"None whatsoever," he said when asked whether there had been any "incidents" since landing which would indicate that Japan had a tendency to become truculent.

MacArthur said that progress of the occupation surpasses his expectations.

"What has been the conduct of American troops in Japan, Gen. MacArthur?" I asked.

He replied, "they have been magnificent in every way. They have acted with dignity, with firmness and with a self-restraint that has been admirable. Whenever they go, they are America's finest diplomats."

Responding to an inquiry as to whether Japan's industries were generally operative, MacArthur said, "Japan industrially, commercially, militarily and in every other way is in a state of complete collapse."

"Her resources of every kind are absolutely exhausted. Her food supplies are scant and she faces conditions in this emergency that may well become catastrophic. Her punishment for her sins, which is just beginning, will be long and bitter."

Asked whether any fraternization is developing between American troops and the Japanese civilian population, MacArthur said, "none. The general aloofness of the American soldier, based upon his innate self-respect, is one of the most noticeable characteristics of the occupation."

Asked whether he thought our troops enjoyed the occupation,

MRS. MARTENS INJURED WHEN CARS COLLIDE

Mrs. Ira Martens, route 1 Amanda, suffered head injuries when a car driven by Mr. Martens hooked bumpers with an automobile driven by Miss Gift Macklin, route 1 Circleville, on route 159 in Tarlton Thursday at 5 p. m.

The automobile in which Mrs. Martens was riding was traveling on route 159 and collided with the Macklin car which was pulling out of a filling station, the sheriff's department reported. The cars hooked bumpers and slid into a tree.

Mrs. Martens was taken to Dr. Reichelderfer's office in Amanda. Other passengers in the Martens car were Mr. and Mrs. Loy Hyme, route 2 Amanda.

MacArthur replied, "I believe the predominant interest of our officers and soldiers is to do their duty whatever and however it may occur. Within this limitation, their burning desire is to return home."

In conclusion I asked Gen. MacArthur whether the policies which governed a defeated Japan would be determined by him or by a higher authority.

He replied, "all major policies will be determined on the highest governmental level by the Allied powers and will be executed by me as their agent, as I may be directed."

ent critic of Army policy, was encouraged by Marshall's "assurances that they are not going to keep non-essential men regardless of the point system and that all two-year men will get out by next Spring."

Johnson pointed out, however, that the promised release of two-year men was at variance with Army testimony last week that the Army still will need 900,000 men of two or more years service by the end of next June. That was based on the estimate that Army strength still will be 2,500,000 men at that time.

Sen. Homer Ferguson, R. Mich., said Marshall failed to clear up a question of whether transportation or processing machinery is the limiting factor on the speed of demobilization. Marshall mentioned both.

"If it is transportation the people will understand and appreciate it," Ferguson said. "If it is processing, they will want to know why the Army didn't anticipate the problem of demobilizing 8,000,000 and make better arrangements for meeting it."

Others were dissatisfied with Marshall's indication that a decision on the size of occupation forces must be postponed for a while.

Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry, R. Neb., demanded that the size of occupation forces and postwar needs be determined now "so congress can decide on continuing the draft and the rate of demobilization."

Gen. MacArthur Orders Immediate Arrest Of Jap Army Commander

er shall not give prominence to any story for the purposes of establishing or developing any propaganda line.

MacArthur formulated his code after suspending the Japanese Domei agency and two Tokyo newspapers for varied lengths of time for coloring news and publishing items which he said tended to disturb public tranquillity.

The order for Doihara's arrest followed by two days his first call on Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the American Eighth army and the man to whom he was to report on the progress of demobilization of Japanese forces.

At that time, Doihara pledged his every effort to facilitate the American occupation. Eichelberger said later that Doihara appeared "courteous and cooperative."

Doihara, 61, successfully commanded the Japanese army air force, was inspector - general of military education and a supreme war councilor during the Pacific war before he was given his present commands.

He earlier came to notice during the Manchurian incident in the early 1930s as chief of army intelligence special services at Mukden.

After the China war began, he became field commander leading operations at Kaifeng, was a major general leading a division in the Peiping-Hankow railway campaign, and directed the drive on Suchow in northern China.

Two other accused war criminals, both of them already on MacArthur's list of those wanted for trial, were taken in custody by the Eighth army today.

They were Lily Aberg, a Swiss-German propaganda broadcaster on the Tokyo radio, and John Holland, an Australian radio announcer who broadcast Japanese propaganda from Shanghai. Holland was apprehended on Hokkaido island, northern Japan.

TIGERS LEAVE FOR HILLSBORO

Game Will Start At 9 P. M. Circleville Time; Team Travels In Bus

Circleville high school Tigers were scheduled to leave at 5:15 p. m. Friday for Hillsboro where they will meet the Indians in the first South Central Ohio league game of the season for both teams. The game will start at 8 p. m. Hillsboro time, which is 9 p. m. Circleville time.

The Tigers will make the trip in a bus this year, instead of in passenger automobiles used during the war.

The game promises to be one of the best of the season. The Tigers have worked hard this week with the anticipation of bumping into one of the toughest teams in the SCO. The fact that Hillsboro lost to Dayton Strivers last week has not given them any false confidence. The Indians are said to be big and are planning to win the SCO championship.

The Tiger lineup has not been announced but several changes from last week have been indicated.

NEW SUPER-SPY SYSTEM PLANNED BY AMERICANS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—The United States qualified today as perhaps the first nation in history to announce to the world that it is about to organize a super-espionage system.

All major countries have had well-developed spy systems for years, although they have operated under fancier names. Cashing in on wartime experience, the United States is now setting up a more comprehensive system, and is following the usual policy of telling the world about it.

Rev. Long assured his flock that there was nothing to worry about. No one would feel the atomic explosion of the world when it came and only the bodies would perish—the souls would float free until judgment day.

Cluxton followed, officers said, shot and wounded his wife twice, then turned the gun on himself, firing once into his abdomen and once under the armpit, authorities reported.

ent critic of Army policy, was encouraged by Marshall's "assurances that they are not going to keep non-essential men regardless of the point system and that all two-year men will get out by next Spring."

Johnson pointed out, however, that the promised release of two-year men was at variance with Army testimony last week that the Army still will need 900,000 men of two or more years service by the end of next June. That was based on the estimate that Army strength still will be 2,500,000 men at that time.

Sen. Homer Ferguson, R. Mich., said Marshall failed to clear up a question of whether transportation or processing machinery is the limiting factor on the speed of demobilization. Marshall mentioned both.

"If it is transportation the people will understand and appreciate it," Ferguson said. "If it is processing, they will want to know why the Army didn't anticipate the problem of demobilizing 8,000,000 and make better arrangements for meeting it."

Others were dissatisfied with Marshall's indication that a decision on the size of occupation forces must be postponed for a while.

Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry, R. Neb., demanded that the size of occupation forces and postwar needs be determined now "so congress can decide on continuing the draft and the rate of demobilization."

Gen. MacArthur Orders Immediate Arrest Of Jap Army Commander

er shall not give prominence to any story for the purposes of establishing or developing any propaganda line.

MacArthur formulated his code after suspending the Japanese Domei agency and two Tokyo newspapers for varied lengths of time for coloring news and publishing items which he said tended to disturb public tranquility.

The order for Doihara's arrest followed by two days his first call on Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the American Eighth army and the man to whom he was to report on the progress of demobilization of Japanese forces.

At that time, Doihara pledged his every effort to facilitate the American occupation. Eichelberger said later that Doihara appeared "courteous and cooperative."

Doihara, 61, successively commanded the Japanese army air force, was inspector - general of military education and a supreme war counselor during the Pacific war before he was given his present commands.

He earlier came to notice during the Manchurian incident in the early 1930s as chief of army intelligence special services at Mukden.

After the China war began, he became field commander leading operations at Kaifeng, was a major general leading a division in the Peiping-Hankow railway campaign, and directed the drive on Suchow in northern China.

Two other accused war criminals, both of them already on MacArthur's list of those wanted for trial, were taken in custody by the Eighth army today.

They were Lily Abegg, a Swiss-German propaganda broadcaster on the Tokyo radio, and John Holland, an Australian radio announcer who broadcast Japanese propaganda from Shanghai. Holland was apprehended on Hokkaido island, northern Japan.

flatly that if people don't quit sinning pretty soon, he'll lose his temper and go ahead and let the ethereal thunder rumble—calendar or no calendar.

"Which is all right with me," said the Rev. Long.

Last night, after a week of prayers and 24 hours of fasting, Long, his 32-year-old son Richard, and their 50 followers turned out the lights and went to bed just as on any other night. Most of the 50 were back at Long's house this morning.

Rev. Long assured his flock that there was nothing to worry about. No one would feel the atomic explosion of the world when it came and only the bodies would perish—the souls would float free until judgment day.

Then he and his son, Richard, sat down and devoured what was left of a nice, fat watermelon.

choice cuts of beef, however, he said.

To abandon the rationing program entirely would not be feasible, he said, because of a danger that we might go on a "meat-eating spree" and next Spring be back to a much lower level of supply.

Anderson disclosed that he had written a letter to Maj. Gen. Hershey, national selective service director, asking that farm boys be drafted "in strict compliance with the Tydings amendment."

Anderson also told reporters that he had written the war department about the shortage of farm labor and suggested the possibility of again utilizing prisoners of war labor on the nation's farms next Summer.

HILLSBORO MAN TRIES TO KILL WIFE AND SELF

HILLSBORO, O., Sept. 21—An attempt by John Cluxton, 60, to shoot first his wife, then himself, failed yesterday but left both the Hillsboro hospital in critical condition.

The shooting occurred, officers said, when Mrs. Cluxton left the farm eleven miles south of here to live with son, apparently in an effort to avoid family trouble. Cluxton followed, officers said, shot and wounded his wife twice, then turned the gun on himself, firing once into his abdomen and once under the heart, authorities reported.

Circleville and Pickaway county servicemen returned from overseas now on 30-day furlough from the Reception Station at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Pa., are now being notified individually of the liberalization of the Army's furlough plan which will extend their stays at home to 45 days.

The adjutant's section of the reception station at Indiantown Gap has sent telegrams to approximately 2,000 soldiers who were scheduled to report back at the time the liberalized program was placed in effect.

Printed cards notifying furloughing soldiers with a future reporting date now are in the mail to 20,000 returnees who were processed through the reception station. These cards give to each soldier his new reporting date.

New orders will be cut collectively on the returnees and copies of these will be furnished the soldiers on their arrival back at Indiantown or at their assembly station.

OVERSEAS MAIL

TO mail or not to mail. That is the question bothering servicemen's families now that it is time to send Christmas packages overseas again. But the answer is fairly simple.

If he has enough points for discharge, or if his outfit has not been slated for occupation duty, then he may well get home for Christmas. If, on the other hand, he does not have enough points; or if, in spite of his points, he belongs to an outfit scheduled for occupation, it is better to send the presents.

General Eisenhower has pointed out that it will be an almost impossible task to get Christmas gifts safely to men already on the way home, because their addresses change so fast. And the shipping problem is already hard enough without adding extra ocean trips for boxes whose owners have passed them midway. But the men who have to stay for awhile—and there are millions of them—will need more than ever the knowledge that friends at home haven't forgotten them.

If you're sure he'll be home, don't mail. If not—mail gifts at once.

HOME OF THE BOMB

TOURISTS in the Southwest have a new attraction, the crater at Alamogordo, N. M., left by the atomic bomb's trial explosion. It is a saucer-shaped pit, 25 feet deep and a half-mile across, surrounded by a mile-wide ring wiped completely clear of vegetation. As a testimony of the terrific force of the explosive that later wiped out Hiroshima and Nagasaki, it will no doubt attract many visitors and perhaps ultimately be made a national monument.

The one drawback is that the crater may still be radioactive. The visitors at the first public inspection wore canvas foot-bags instead of shoes, to make sure that no radio-active grain would be picked up, and all were warned that to stay there, even for a few hours, would be unsafe. Presumably, however, this condition will not last forever. Then watch the hot-dog stands spring up near Alamogordo.

UNDER CONTROL

OUR Pacific job proceeds according to schedule. Late reports say there are 5,000 American army and navy men, trained and organized for military government, under Gen. MacArthur, taking over occupied Japan and outlying parts of the Pacific. It seems like a small outfit to govern about 60,000,000 men, but the Japanese seem belatedly to recognize that Uncle Sam means business, and has the materials and the will to use them when necessary.

And Uncle will not make the same mistake again. From now on, Japan and outlying parts of the Pacific will be better controlled.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—The big four congressional leaders came away from their confidential confab with Mr. Truman talking privately about the irresponsibility of labor, how the discharge of three men in a wheel plant caused the whole Ford empire to shut down, how some little gadget-making factory strike upset another industry, and how the government had to take over the Illinois Central railroad because of some fool walkout. They saw no possibility of legislation but thought Mr. Truman might give the labor leaders a talking-to.

Thus, lightly, did they view the developing clouds, although one mentioned the condition as "a national outbreak" and another considered the possibility that the wheel plant was pulled out to put Ford in a defensive mood while the UAW dealt with his rival, General Motors, and all recognized the symptoms of spreading union demands for the greatest wage increase of all history.

Soon developments will plainly disclose it as a well financed and managed campaign, strongest since the sit-down strike, and expertly timed for the reconversion period when all manufacturers are trying to get a jump on competitors.

Behind it is CIO, and behind CIO lie these following inner conditions:

The public, congress and even government has come to look upon CIO as the most powerful political and economic force of the country. It is not. CIO claims 5,000,000 membership, but has a little more than half that many dues payers. From the start it has concealed all data on its membership. To give it 3,000,000 would be generous. Its power lies not in numbers but in riches, which it is able to spend in political campaigns.

AFL really has about 5,000,000 dues payers and proves it by published bank and certified accountant figures. Indeed it bargains for 2,000,000 additional, but it does not try to control national economy or use its money mainly for political action.

Now in an organized campaign to spearhead a 30 per cent wage increase and thus control economic policy of the country, CIO actually represents about 5 per cent of the workers. Are not all economic authorities agreed (Messrs. Wallace and the manufacturers) that there are in hand and prospect about 60,000,000 peacetime jobs for that number of workers? (Best sources say 53,500,000 plus Army, making nearly 60,000,000.)

Together CIO plus AFL have less than 8,000,000 dues payers (these figures have been obtained from the best objective authority) and about 10,000,000 for whom they bargain. The farmers are just as powerful a political and economic force, numerically. Their 1943 census showed 10,263,000 at work on farms in the country, at a time when help was depleted.

Yet greater than both unionist and farmer are the 40,000,000 or so workers outside both. While the unions are rich (their war incomes were completely free from taxation) and the farmers have three modestly financed lobbies which do not try to dominate the country, the 40,000,000 have no organized money or representation.

Yet their economic interest is paramount and their wellbeing can make or break the country, while CIO's 3,000,000 is merely equal to the number of normally unemployed. If the 30 per cent wage increase is force, most of 40,000,000 will

DIET AND HEALTH

Causes of Heart Conditions

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

HEART conditions may arise from various causes. High blood pressure is responsible for certain types of heart disturbance. An excessive amount of secretion from the thyroid gland in the neck will also produce permanent heart damage. It is also a fact that in myxedema, which is a condition due to too little thyroid extract, heart disorders may arise.

It is often difficult to tell, in a patient whose heart disturbance has come from too little thyroid secretion, just what is producing the difficulty. In other words, the heart disorder interferes with the tests usually made to determine whether the thyroid gland is functioning properly.

Best Test

According to Doctor Thomas Hodge McGavack and his co-workers, of New York, one of the best tests for thyroid disturbance is to determine the amount of a certain substance in the blood known as cholesterol. Cholesterol is a substance present in all the tissues of the body. When there is a lack of thyroid secretion, the amount of cholesterol is decreased. Heart disorders do not affect the amount of cholesterol in the blood. Thus, if a person, suspected of having a thyroid deficiency and heart trouble, is found to have a decrease of cholesterol in the blood, it is evident that the heart trouble is due to the thyroid gland disturbance.

Both Disorders

In treating patients who have both heart and thyroid disorder, the giving of thyroid extract is necessary in all instances, but the amount must be adjusted for each case. The preparation should be used only under the direction of the physician. He will have to regulate the dose depending upon the reaction which occurs from its use.

Treatment of the heart condition is more important than treatment of the thyroid gland trouble. But the response of the heart to treatment will be disappointing unless thyroid extract is also administered.

First Dose Small

The first dose of thyroid extract given is small. The speed with which the dose is increased depends upon the age of the patient, the duration of the disorder, and the amount of damage to the heart which has occurred.

It is always important for a person who has heart trouble to determine the cause before treatment is undertaken. If it is found that there is a thyroid deficiency, the use of thyroid extract in the proper dose is of extreme importance.

Pattern for Love

by LORENA CARLETON

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE BELINDA'S reference to her mother made Sandra instinctively drop a sympathetic arm about the child's shoulders. As quickly she took it away. The expression on Belinda's face was not one of yearning; it was one of absolute gloating. However, it faded, while Sandra gazed with renewed interest at her own transformation.

"This is a pretty dress, Miss Edwards," Those cool, drawled words coming from Belinda Adams were the same as a fowery speech from someone else. Her bling brown eyes met those of the red-haired woman, in the mirror.

"And you're a very pretty girl. Just as I said you were." This time Belinda did not answer with rude declarations. She just blushed and watched Sandra fit expertly shaped cotton pads into the shoulders of the plaid dress. Their thickness relieved the child's too-thin appearance, adding both poise and jauntness.

"Do you think—" Belinda's words faltered. "Do you think I look almost 13 in this dress?" "I think you look almost 14," fibbed Sandra. She wished she dared ask the child to define the strange and unattractive expression that had been on her face when she mentioned her mother.

Instead, she kept silent and began experimenting with the girl's long braids, looping them across the back, then across the top of that small dark head. Finally she undid the braids completely and let all that hair hang loosely about Belinda's shoulders. It had been so tightly braided that it held the waviness of the old type "waterfall" and was particularly becoming to the little girl's quaint beauty.

She said to Sandra: "This is the first time anyone has combed my hair except Brody—that is, he used to. Of course now I do it myself. That's why I wear it in braids. It is easy—especially when a person doesn't have curly hair."

"Don't worry about curly hair, Belinda. Dampen yours and braid it tightly every night, then brush it in the morning and you'll have your friends with curls envious."

Belinda gave an uncertain shake of the head, as if that were an inconceivable dream. All the same, she kept gazing at herself with rapt admiration. She seemed dazed. Not Sandra. She had improved so many with her knowledge that nothing could surprise her—nothing except failure to make someone attractive. That would really surprise her.

She stuck dark combs above Belinda's ears, then motioned her to the full-length mirror in the hallway. Those snapping brown eyes traveled slowly from the top of her head to her feet.

She groaned. "My shoes, Miss

Edwards. My shoes!" There they were, those horrid criss-cross ones. Sandra's heart flipped over, then belated. Quickly she went to her closet and came back with a pair of tan suede walking shoes. Pumps with low heels. She dropped to her knees and hurriedly unbuckled the hideous strapped shoes.

Belinda stepped into the tan suede pumps. But she was not pleased. "They're almost my size. A tiny bit loose—but not enough." She was, Sandra realized, ashamed because her feet were the size of a grown woman's. Sandra fibbed a second time. "They are too tight for me, Belinda. They kill me. Really they do."

Belinda seemed ready to argue the matter, but at that moment Spenser came into the living room. "I've been nice long enough," he yelled. "Blast it all, you can't keep a chap out of his own lodgings forever—" Belinda now stepped into full view and, for the first time since she had known him, Sandra saw the eyes of her British charge actually bulge. He said to Belinda: "I say, you—" He whirled and addressed Sandra instead. "I say, Sandra, she looks different, doesn't she?"

"Uhm, she conceded casually. It seemed Belinda also was going to adhere to the no-speaking status. Ignoring Spenser, she said: "Thank you for everything, Miss Edwards. I'm going now." And then, just as she got alongside Spenser, she said: "Isn't it wonderful my birthday cake has coconut-marshmallow icing? That's my favorite kind."

"How did you find out?" he accused. "It's supposed to be a secret."

"It was until you came in," Belinda zipped through the door. As speedily Spenser got to a looking glass. There, on one side of his mouth, was the tell-tale stickiness. He reached for his handkerchief.

"She's a horrid little girl!" he said. But his heart was not really in his condemnation. And he bounced to the window to catch a glimpse of her going around the patio walk.

Until the ranchowner's daughter had gone Sandra was unaware of the tension she had endured during the past 30 minutes. Now that it was over she found herself shaking as she so often had those last days in Chicago.

Spenser was not watching Belinda now. He was watching his guardian. "You'd better have a bit of a nap," he advised. "You look done in."

"It's so ridiculous to be tired from putting shoulder pads into a dress."

Spenser was not a stubborn child now. He was his other self, that person who bossed Sandra in an adult way. He was herding her to ward her bedroom. "I'll call you in time for dinner, Sandra. You'd do well to remember why you came west. It was for your own good. Not Belinda's."

Despite her shaking, the red-haired girl fell asleep in a very short time. She dreamed. Dreadful dreams. Gordon Adams giving his small daughter pair after pair of boots. Belinda, at her birthday table, in Levis and a crumpled cowboy shirt. Her own face, not Spenser's sticky with coconut-marshmallow icing.

Sandra awoke with a start, feeling that stickiness on her cheek. Spenser was sitting on the side of her bed. The coconut-marshmallow icing was Tex, on her pillow, kissing her lavishly. He was a ludicrous sight. None of the characteristics of an Irish setter were yet his; nor would they be for several months. He was simply a drab, brownish puppy. Around his neck was an enormous birthday card which he now began to fight, threatening it with babyish growls.

"Definitely a watchdog, Sandra." "Oh yes," laughed the girl, feeling peaceful once more.

Spenser defended the puppy further: "He was the first to bark. The woman told us so."

Sandra decided it was fortunate he was going to give away the dog at the birthday dinner; otherwise his attachment would grow until he could not bear to be so generous.

When Spenser and Sandra entered the ranch house living room Belinda's snapping brown eyes lighted instantly on the dog, nestling in the British boy's arms. She deliberately turned her back; it presented a formidable barrier to any friendliness.

Spenser was not at all daunted. "Happy birthday, Belinda," he cried out as he stepped around her and plumped the baby setter into her arms.

The rigidity in her back dissolved. She turned around and, for one horrible second, it appeared she was going to cry.

To avert that Sandra stepped to the big reading table that now held, instead of magazines, all Belinda's gifts.

"Show me all your presents, Belinda."

Still clutching the dog, Belinda began pointing out gifts, naming the donors. Brody, Hank, Penny, all the cowpunchers. Estela's fancy candy. Things from schoolmates.

"You knocked this off the table," Spenser retrieved a stiff white envelope. It was sealed. "Why don't you open this birthday greeting, Belinda?"

"Why should I?" she asked disinterestedly. "It's just a check from my mother. She sends me one every year."

"The Authority on Authorities"

A BIG DIFFERENCE

"WHAT'S THE difference?" an unthinking player may inquire as to whether he takes a particular trick or his partner does. It makes all the difference in the world in some cases, as it determines which will be the leader to the next trick. Often one member of a pair is in position to make a lead which is advantageous to his side, whereas a lead at that same stage from his partner will cost the side one or more tricks. If each observes the cards played by the other, many a time a signal will be detected which indicates who should take a certain trick later on.

South opened his club 5, the A winning. Then came three top spades, the heart A, Q, 9 and K, and a fourth spade, the 10 in the dummy. The club 8 was led. North, who had preserved his best two clubs and best two diamonds, pounced on this with the club K. Now he had the lead, and was stuck with it! If he returned his other club, the dummy could ruff while East discarded his losing diamond. So he led a diamond. But

East came in with the Q, which held, and the last two tricks were won by the diamond A and a spade.

North should have foreseen that he was end-played when the club 8 was led, and should have played low, hoping South could win the trick, which he could. A diamond return then from South would have given the defenders the setting trick in that suit with North's K. North feared, he said, that East had the club Q. Even if that had been true, North's ducking of the trick would have cost nothing, as he would have got it back in diamonds.

South could have made it easy for North, however. When East ran his four heart tricks South should have discarded the club 7 first and then the 4—a high-low—to indicate to North that he had something in the suit. North, obeying that, should have ducked the club 8 trick on which he let himself be end-played.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—The big four congressional leaders came away from their confidential confab with Mr. Truman talking privately about the irresponsibility of labor, how the discharge of three men in a wheel plant caused the whole Ford empire to shut down, how some little gadget-making factory strike upset another industry, and how the government had to take over the Illinois Central railroad because of some fool walkout. They saw no possibility of legislation but thought Mr. Truman might give the labor leaders a talking-to.

Thus, lightly, did they view the developing clouds, although one mentioned the condition as "a national outbreak" and another considered the possibility that the wheel plant was pulled out to put Ford in a defensive mood while the UAW dealt with his rival, General Motors, and all recognized the symptoms of spreading union demands for the greatest wage increase of all history.

Soon developments will plainly disclose it as a well financed and managed campaign, strongest since the sit-down strike, and expertly timed for the reconversion period when all manufacturers are trying to get a jump on competitors.

Behind it is CIO, and behind CIO lie these following inner conditions:

The public, congress and even government has come to look upon CIO as the most powerful political and economic force of the country. It is not. CIO claims 5,000,000 membership, but has a little more than half that many dues payers. From the start it has concealed all data on its membership. To give it 3,000,000 would be generous. Its power lies not in numbers but in riches, which it is able to spend in political campaigns.

AFL really has about 5,000,000 dues payers and proves it by published bank and certified accountant figures. Indeed it bargains for 2,000,000 additional, but it does not try to control national economy or use its money mainly for political action.

Now in an organized campaign to spearhead a 30 per cent wage increase and thus control economic policy of the country, CIO actually represents about 5 per cent of the workers. Are not all economic authorities agreed (Messrs. Wallace and the manufacturers) that there are in hand and prospect about 60,000,000 peacetime jobs for that number of workers? (Best sources say 53,500,000 plus Army, making nearly 60,000,000.)

Together CIO plus AFL have less than 8,000,000 dues payers (these figures have been obtained from the best objective authority) and about 10,000,000 for whom they bargain. The farmers are just as powerful a political and economic force, numerically. Their 1943 census showed 10,263,000 at work on farms in the country, at a time when help was depleted.

Yet greater than both unionist and farmer are the 40,000,000 or so workers outside both. While the unions are rich (their war incomes were completely free from taxation) and the farmers have three modestly financed lobbies which do not try to dominate the country, the 40,000,000 have no organized money or representation.

Yet their economic interest is paramount and their wellbeing can make or break the country, while CIO's 3,000,000 is merely equal to the number of normally unemployed. If the 30 per cent wage increase is force, most of 40,000,000 will

Causes of Heart Conditions

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

HEART conditions may arise from various causes. High blood pressure is responsible for certain types of heart disturbance. An excessive amount of secretion from the thyroid gland in the neck will also produce permanent heart damage. It is also a fact that in myxedema, which is a condition due to too little thyroid extract, heart disorders may arise.

It is often difficult to tell, in a patient whose heart disturbance has come from too little thyroid secretion, just what is producing the difficulty. In other words, the heart disorder interferes with the tests usually made to determine whether the thyroid gland is functioning properly.

Best Test

According to Doctor Thomas Hodge McGavack and his co-workers, of New York, one of the best tests for thyroid disturbance is to determine the amount of a certain substance in the blood known as cholesterol. Cholesterol is a substance present in all the tissues of the body. When there is a lack of thyroid secretion, the amount of cholesterol is decreased.

Heart disorders do not affect the amount of cholesterol in the blood. Thus, if a person, suspected of having a thyroid deficiency and heart trouble, is found to have a decrease of cholesterol in the blood, it is evident that the heart trouble is due to the thyroid gland disturbance.

Both Disorders

In treating patients who have both heart and thyroid disorder, the giving of thyroid extract is necessary in all instances, but the amount must be adjusted for each case. The preparation should be used only under the direction of the physician. He will have to regulate the dose depending upon the reaction which occurs from its use.

Treatment of the heart condition is more important than treatment of the thyroid gland trouble. But the response of the heart to treatment will be disappointing unless thyroid extract is also administered.

First Dose Small

The first dose of thyroid extract given is small. The speed with which the dose is increased depends upon the age of the patient, the duration of the disorder, and the amount of damage to the heart which has occurred.

It is always important for a person who has heart trouble to determine the cause before treatment is undertaken. If it is found that there is a thyroid deficiency, the use of thyroid extract in the proper dose is of extreme importance.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

BELINDA'S reference to her mother made Sandra instinctively drop a sympathetic arm about the child's shoulders. As quickly she took it away. The expression on Belinda's face was not one of yearning; it was one of absolute gloating. However, it faded, while Sandra gazed with renewed interest at her own transformation.

"This is a pretty dress, Miss Edwards." Those cool, drawled words coming from Belinda Adams were the same as a flowery speech from someone else. Her biting brown eyes met those of the red-haired woman, in the mirror.

"And you're a very pretty girl. Just as I said you were." This time Belinda did not answer with rude declarations. She just blushed and watched Sandra fit expertly shaped cotton pads into the shoulders of the plaid dress. Their thickness relieved the child's too-thin appearance, adding both poise and jauntyness.

"Do you think—" Belinda's words faltered. "Do you think I look almost 13 in this dress?" "I think you look almost 14," fibbed Sandra. She wished she dared ask the child to define the strange and unattractive expression that had been on her face when she mentioned her mother.

Instead, she kept silent and began experimenting with the girl's long braids, looping them across the back, then across the top of that small dark head. Finally she undid the braids completely and let all that hair hang loosely about Belinda's shoulders. It had been so tightly braided that it held the waviness of the old type "waterfall" and was particularly becoming to the little girl's quaint beauty.

She said to Sandra: "This is the first time anyone has combed my hair except Brody—that is, he used to. Of course now I do it myself. That's why I wear it in braids. It is easy—especially when a person doesn't have curly hair."

"Don't worry about curly hair, Belinda. Dampen yours and braid it tightly every night, then brush it in the morning and you'll have your friends with curls envious."

Belinda gave an uncertain shake of the head, as if there were an inconceivable dream. All the same, she kept gazing at herself with rapt admiration. She seemed dazed. Not Sandra. She had improved so many with her knowledge that nothing could surprise her—nothing except failure to make someone attractive. That would really surprise her.

She stuck dark combs above Belinda's ears, then motioned her to the full-length mirror in the hallway. Those snapping brown eyes traveled slowly from the top of her head to her feet.

She groaned. "My shoes, Miss

Edwards. My shoes!" There they were, those horrid criss-cross ones. Sandra's heart flipped over, then behaved. Quickly she went to her closet and came back with a pair of tan suede walking shoes. Pumps with low heels. She dropped to her knees and hurriedly unbuckled the hideous strapped shoes.

Belinda stepped into the tan suede pumps. But she was not pleased. "They're almost my size. A tiny bit loose—but not enough." She was, Sandra realized, ashamed because her feet were the size of a grown woman's. Sandra fibbed a second time. "They are too tight for me, Belinda. They kill me. Really they do."

Belinda seemed ready to argue the matter, but at that moment Spenser came into the living room. "I've been nice long enough," he yelled. "Blast it all, you can't keep a chap out of his own lodgings forever—" Belinda now stepped into full view and, for the first time since she had known him, Sandra saw the eyes of her British charge actually bulge. He said to Belinda: "I say, you— He whirled and addressed Sandra instead. "I say, Sandra, she looks different, doesn't she?"

"Ummm," she conceded casually. It seemed Belinda also was going to adhere to the no-speaking status. Ignoring Spenser, she said: "Thank you for everything, Miss Edwards. I'm going now." And then, just as she got alongside Spenser, she said: "Isn't it wonderful my birthday cake has coconut-marshmallow icing? That's my favorite kind."

"How did you find out?" he accused. "It's supposed to be a secret."

"It was until you came in," Belinda zipped through the door.

As speedily Spenser got to a looking glass. There, on one side of his mouth, was the tell-tale stickiness. He reached for his handkerchief.

"She's a horrid little girl!" he said. But his heart was not really in his condemnation. And he bounced to the window to catch a glimpse of her going around the patio walk.

Until the ranchowner's daughter had gone Sandra was unaware of the tension she had endured during the past 30 minutes. Now that it was over she found herself shaking as she so often had those last days in Chicago.

Spenser was not watching Belinda now. He was watching his guardian. "You'd better have a bit of a nap," he advised. "You look done in."

"It's so ridiculous to be tired from putting shoulder pads into a dress."

Spenser was not a stubborn child now. He was his other self, that person who boasted Sandra in an adult way. He was herding her to ward her bedroom.

"I'll call you in time for dinner, Sandra. You'd do well to remember why you came west. It was for your own good. Not Belinda's."

Despite her shaking, the red-haired girl fell asleep in a very short time. She dreamed. Dreadful dreams. Gordon Adams giving his small daughter pair after pair of boots. Belinda, at her birthday table, in Levis and a crumpled cowboy shirt. Her own face, not Spenser's sticky with coconut-marshmallow icing.

Sandra awoke with a start, feeling that stickiness on her cheek. Spenser was sitting on the side of her bed. The coconut-marshmallow icing was Tex, on her pillow, kissing her lavishly. He was a ludicrous sight. None of the characteristics of an Irish setter were yet his; nor would they be for several months. He was simply a drab, brownish puppy. Around his neck was an enormous birthday card which he now began to fight, threatening it with babyish growls.

"Definitely a watchdog, Sandra." "On your mark, get set, go!" feeling peaceful once more.

Spenser defended the puppy further: "He was the first to bark. The woman told us so."

Sandra decided it was fortunate he was going to give away the dog at the birthday dinner; otherwise his attachment would grow until he could not bear to be so generous.

When Spenser and Sandra entered the ranch house living room Belinda's snapping brown eyes lighted instantly on the dog, snatching in the British boy's arm. She deliberately turned her back; it presented a formidable barrier to any friendliness.

Spenser was not at all daunted. "Happy birthday, Belinda," he cried out as he stepped around her and plumped the baby setter into her arms.

The rigidity in her back dissolved. She turned around and, for one horrible second, it appeared she was going to cry on his shoulder.

To avert that Sandra stepped to the big reading table that now held, instead of magazines, all Belinda's gifts.

"Show me all your presents, Belinda." Still clutching the dog, Belinda began pointing out gifts, naming the donors. Brody, Hank, Penny, all the cowpunchers. Estela's fancy candy. Things from schoolmates.

"You knocked this off the table," Spenser retrieved a stiff white envelope. It was sealed. "Why don't you open this birthday greeting, Belinda?"

"Why should I?" she asked disinterestedly. "It's just a check from my mother. She sends me one every year."

"The Authority on Authorities"

A BIG DIFFERENCE

"WHAT'S THE difference?" an unthinking player may inquire as to whether he takes a particular trick or his partner does. It makes all the difference in the world in some cases, as it determines which will be the leader to the next trick. Often one member of a pair is in position to make a lead which is advantageous to his side, whereas a lead at that same stage from his partner will cost the side one or more tricks. If each observes the cards played by the other, many a time a signal will be detected which indicates who should take a certain trick later on.

South opened his club 6, the A winning. Then came three top spades, the heart A, Q, 9 and K, and a fourth spade, the 10 in the dummy. The club 8 was led, North, who had preserved his best two clubs and best two diamonds, pounced on this with the club K. Now he had the lead, and was he stuck with it! If he returned his other club, the dummy could ruff while East discarded his losing diamond. So he led a diamond. But

East came in with the Q, which held, and the last two tricks were won by the diamond A and a spade.

North should have foreseen that his partner's play of the club 8 was led, and should have played low, hoping South could win the trick, which he could. A diamond return then from South would have given the defenders the setting trick in that suit with North's K. North feared, he said, that East had the club Q. Even if that had been true, North's ducking of the trick would have cost nothing, as he would have got it back in diamonds.

South could have made it easy for North, however. When East ran his four heart tricks, South should have discarded the club 7 first and then the 4—a high-low—to indicate to North that he had something in the suit. North, obeying that, should have ducked the club 8 trick on which he let himself be end-played.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY IS MARKED BY HAYS

When Mr. and Mrs. William Hay, Ashville celebrated their golden wedding anniversary the ceremony that united them in marriage 50 years ago was re-enacted at their home.

This ritual which was read by the Rev. H. H. Wilbur of New Lexington, a personal friend of the couple, was a duplication of the ceremony that had been used at the golden wedding anniversary of Mrs. Hay's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Spindler.

The "bride" descended the stairs to the strains of the Bridal March by Lohengrin, played by Miss Florence Larimer and was met by Mr. Hay at the improvised altar decked with chrysanthemums, gladioli and ferns before which they again repeated the marital vows.

Mr. and Mrs. James Struble, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hays were attendants for the ceremony. Mrs. Glen Hay, a daughter-in-law sang two solos "Somewhere a Voice is Calling" and "I Love You Truly" before the vows were exchanged and "Silver Threads Among the Gold" at the conclusion of the ceremony. Miss Larimer acted as accompanist for Mrs. Hay.

For her "wedding," Mrs. Hay was attired in a royal blue crepe dinner gown trimmed in sequins. Mrs. Struble's formal gown was of black jersey. Beside the bride party others in the receiving line were Miss Donna Struble in a striped taffeta gown, Miss Janet Struble, in pink net and Miss Larimer wearing gold marquisette. Their corsages blended with the color of their gowns.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at which 79 friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Hay were in attendance. Wedding gifts that the couple had received fifty years ago were on display and the dining table was covered with a linen cloth that had been another wedding gift. The centerpiece on the table was of yellow roses and chrysanthemums and yellow candles in crystal holders were placed on either side. Mrs. Milton Hott, sister of Mr. Hay, presented each man present with a boutonier and to the ladies she gave small corsages. Throughout the reception piano and accordion music was rendered by Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Struble and Mrs. Jay Hay.

Mr. and Mrs. Hay who are 78 and 73 years old respectively are in good health. They have one son, Glenn Hay, two daughters, Mrs. Struble and Mrs. Taylor, six grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Mrs. Walter Shannon, a sister of Mrs. Hay called from her home in California to wish them happiness on their golden wedding day. A brother, Ed Spindler, who also resides in California sent greetings to them in the form of an original poem that he had written especially for them.

Many gifts and floral pieces were received by the couple.

Pumpkin Show Program Outlined and Officers Elected

SPECIAL EVENTS PLANNED FOR THREE NIGHTS

Beauty Show Scheduled To Start Festivities; Many Bands To Play

The program was outlined and officers were elected for the Pumpkin Show to be held in Circleville October 17-18-19-20, by the Pumpkin Show committee at its organizational meeting Thursday night in City Hall.

A beauty queen contest among county high schools, a high school band night, a lodge night to honor returning veterans, at least nine special exhibits, a pet parade, and rides and concessions, were among the features planned for the big celebration.

Mayor Ben H. Gordon was elected president of the committee and presided over the first meeting. Other officers elected were Clarence Helvering, vice president; R. G. Colville, treasurer; Ned H. Dresbach, secretary; and Mack Parrett, assistant secretary.

A board of directors to serve under the officers was named. They are as follows: Russell Palm, Howard McKee, James I. Smith, Jr., I. W. Kinsey, Dan McClain, Frank Susa, Frank Wantz, and Clifford Shook.

Dan McClain, who is working with Howard McKee and Frank Wantz directing bands and parades, announced that three special night programs and one special afternoon program will be presented.

Wednesday, opening night, will be beauty queen night. Beauty queens, selected from county high schools, will compete for the title of Queen of the Pumpkin Show and cash prizes.

Thursday night will be high school band with bands from county high schools parading. Friday afternoon a pet parade will be held.

Friday night has been set aside as a night to honor returning veterans. Bands sponsored by the American Legion, Elks, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Eagles, will parade.

Among the special exhibits will be the pumpkin contest, directed by Clarence Helvering. There will also be exhibits and contests for vegetables and fruits, cakes and cookies, and flowers.

I. W. Kinsey has charge of a special contest which will offer prizes to the best decorated shop window. The plan is to let high school children decorate windows donated by local merchants.
